W.O.T.M. NEWS.....

From the Junior Graduate Regent:

As I hand my gavel over to our new Senior Regent, Tracy Ayers, I'd like to thank all who supported our Chapter this past year. Many of you don't realize that without you, we would not be successful. Did you buy a raffle ticket, a 50/50 ticket? Did you enjoy one of the many dinners we sold? Did you attend a function; donate to a kid's party? Did you purchase a shamrock, pumpkin or ghost to be hung on the wall? Did you donate your time or money to any of our many functions? All of those things contribute to our being able to support Mooseheart/Moosehaven and other local community charities. For example, our recent Reverse Raffle raised money that will be utilized to purchase Stuffed Tommy Moose's to be donated to local law enforcement. The will have them in the trunk of their cars to help comfort a child who is experiencing a traumatic situation.

I would also like to encourage members to become more involved. Come to a meeting, they are open to all members in good standing. Come and tell us what functions you would like to attend, give us new ideas and propose new events. If we all work together, we can accomplish everything. Co-workers are always welcome and always needed.

Finally, as I am sure you are aware, we are not just a bar, we are a family, we celebrate together our accomplishments, life changes, births, weddings, etc. We mourn losses together. We laugh and cry together. We pitch in when necessary to help a member in need. For all of those reasons and more I thank you for the opportunity to be a part of this family we call "The Moose".

Tina Brenenstuhl,
Junior Graduate Regent

Reminder:

L.O.O.M. NEWS.....

From the Past Governor:

I would like to take this time to say Thank You to all the members of this Lodge for allowing me to have served as your Governor the past two years. It truly was a rewarding experience. Being able to have attended two Moose International Conventions was inspiring. Hearing students and alumni of Mooseheart speak and tell their stories of what Mooseheart means to them reminds you how important this organization is and the good things it provides to others.

Thank you to our awesome Women's Chapter here at Painesville. They were always willing to help in any way they could for the betterment of this Lodge and were a pleasure to work with.

Our founder James J. Davis said "A task heavy to one is borne light by many" and that couldn't describe any better the Officers I was fortunate to have worked with the last two years. It was an honor to have served with these Gentlemen. No egos, no drama just working together for the best interests of the Lodge

Finally, none of this would be necessary if it wasn't for you the members. Your support of the Lodge events, participation in Lodge functions & activities, and bringing new members into the Lodge is what keeps this place going. The Moose bill's the organization as "The Friendliest Place in Town" and I truly believe we at Painesville 490 are the friendliest place in town!

Thank you again for everything you did to make my two years so enjoyable. Please continue to support the new Lodge and Chapter officers as they lead our Lodge this year

Past Governor,
Doug Ayers

Did you know???

The Loyal Order of Moose was founded in Louisville, Kentucky, in the spring of 1888 by Dr. John Henry Wilson. Originally intended purely as a men's social club, lodges were soon founded in Cincinnati, Ohio, St. Louis, Missouri and Crawfordsville and Frankfort, Indiana. The early order was not prosperous. Dr. Wilson himself was dissatisfied and left the order of the Moose before the turn of the century.^[1] When Albert C. Stevens was compiling his Cyclopedia of Fraternities in the late 1890s, he was unable to ascertain whether it was still in existence.^[2]

In the fall of 1906 the Order had only the two Indiana lodges remaining. On October 27 of that year James J. Davis became the 247th member of the Order.^[1] Davis was a Welsh immigrant who had come to the US as a youth and worked as an iron puddler in the steel mills of Pennsylvania, and an active labor organizer (he later became Secretary of Labor in the Harding administration).^[3] He saw the Order as a way to provide a social safety net for a working class membership, using a low annual membership fee of $10–$15 (equivalent to $270–$410 in 2017). After giving a rousing address to the seven delegates of the 1906 Moose national convention, he was appointed "Supreme Organizer" of the Order. Davis and a group of organizers set out to recruit members and establish lodges throughout the US and Canada. He was quite successful and the Order grew to nearly half a million members in 1,000 lodges by 1912.

Organization

Local units are called "Lodges", state groups are "State Associations" and the national authority is the "Supreme Lodge of the World", which meets annually. In 1923 there were 1,669 lodges "promulgated in every civilized country controlled by the Caucasian race". In 1966 3,500 lodges were reported in every US state, Guam, Canada, Bermuda and England. In 1979 the Order had 36 State Associations and over 4,000 Lodges. Today it has 1,800 Lodges, in all 50 states and four Canadian provinces, as well as Bermuda and the United Kingdom.

The entire membership is sometimes referred to as the "Moose Domain".

Mooseheart and Moosehaven

At the 1911 convention in Detroit, Davis, who now "Director General" of the Order, recommended that the LOOM acquire property for an "Institute", "School" or "College" that would be a home, schooling, and vocational training for the orphans of LOOM members. For months offers came in and a number of meetings were held regarding the project. It was eventually agreed that the center should be located somewhere near the center of population, adjacent to both rail and river transportation and within a day's travel to a major city. On December 14, 1912 the leaders of the organization decided to purchase the 750-acre Brookline Farm. Brookline was a dairy farm near Batavia, Illinois. It was close to the Fox River, two railway lines and the (then dirt) Lincoln Highway. The leadership also wished to buy additional real estate to the west and north owned by two other families, for a total of 1,023 acres. Negotiations for the purchases were held in January and February 1913, and legal possession of the property was taken on March 1. The name "Mooseheart" had been adopted for the school at the suggestion of Ohio Congressmen and Supreme Council member John Lentz by a unanimous joint meeting of the Supreme Council and Institute Trustees on Feb. 1. Mooseheart was dedicated on July 27, 1913. Vice President Thomas R. Marshall gave a speech for the occasion.

While Mooseheart began as a school, it soon grew to become a small incorporated village and hub of the organization, housing the headquarters of the LOOM, as well as the Women of the Moose. The population of Mooseheart would grow to 1,000 by 1920, reach a peak of 1,300 during the Great Depression and go down to approximately 500, the campus' current maximum capacity, in 1979.

In addition to Mooseheart, the LOOM also runs a retirement center, Moosehaven, located in Orange Park, Florida. This project was inaugurated in the Autumn of 1922 with 26 acres of property and 22 retired Moose residents. It has grown to a 63-acre community with over 400 residents.
